Editorial Board

After four years of scientific work, the journal of Hidden data mining and scientific knowledge discovery has become more consistent by getting more experience in different areas of the editing and publishing domains.

Now, we are with the fourth volume and as usually, we are looking new original submissions and works to include in the next fifth volume!

Consequently, authors are encouraged to submit their latest research results to the HDSKD journal: Hidden data mining and scientific knowledge discovery, which is supposed to be a peer reviewed journal.

The criteria of selection are still based on the review decision, which will lead to the acceptance or reject of the scientific manuscript.

And finally, we recall that the journal is a non-profit academic source of knowledge and does not permit any commercial use of the articles.

Respectfully
The Editorial Board
