Editorial Board

After approximately five years of work, the journal of Hidden data mining and scientific knowledge discovery got more experience in the different areas of the editing and publishing domains.

As usually, we are looking new original submissions and works to include in the next sixth volume!

Consequently, authors are encouraged to submit their latest research results to the HDSKD journal: Hidden data mining and scientific knowledge discovery, which is supposed to be a peer reviewed journal.

The criteria of selection are based on the review reports, which will lead to the acceptance or rejection of the scientific submission.

We also recall that the journal is a non-profit academic source of knowledge and does not permit any commercial use of the articles.

Respectfully
