Welcome to the second issue of the International Journal of Hidden Data Mining and Scientific Knowledge Discovery. We are still in the first volume but we think that we got a lot of experience from the first issue.

The journal represents a good opportunity for researchers to expose their results or to get the comments of the expert readers and reviewers. For the meantime, the journal tries to further improve the quality of the papers that are published with a more specialized and constructive review process.

Again, authors are encouraged to submit their latest research results to the HDSKD journal.

And, we are still proud to announce the opening of our second journal issue in hidden data mining and scientific knowledge discovery (a peer reviewed journal) and encourage authors to submit their latest research results to HDSKD.

The criteria of selection are based on the review decision, which will lead to the acceptance or reject of the paper.

The journal is a non-profit academic source of knowledge and does not permit any commercial use of the articles. It is free...
